CASH.

I HAVE determined to sell my FARM, at the fork of Chartier's creek, in the county o Washington, fifteen miles from Pittsburgh, consisting of about 214 acres, so low for CASH as to make it a great object for any one having the command of money. Its advantages in point of soil, timber, water, sugar camps, neighbourhood, proximity to mills, markets, the turnpike road from Washington to Pittsburgh, meeting houses and an excellent college, are well known —Added to these, some enterprising individuals of capital, are now boring for Salt within a quarter of a mile of it, at a lick which has produced salt from the surface, so that no doubt is entertained of their success. This will be useful, not only to the vicinity in general, but it will be of peculiar benefit to the tract hereby offered for sale, as it will afford a constant market for the stone coal with which the land abounds. I will give the purchaser a PATENT in my own name and a general warranty deed. The title is indisputable. I am willing to dispose of eight or ten other tracts, on moderate terms.

The Ohio River.

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that proposals will be received by the subscribers, for improving the navigation of the Ohio River from the city of Pittsburgh to the line of the state of Pennsylvania, a distance of about 40 miles, from this time until the first of December next.

The contemplated improvement will consist in removing the large stones from the bed of the river, and in cutting an artificial channel through the shoals and ripples of a certain depth and width. The work necessary to effect this object would be of a very simple kind. The stones lying in the channel are not attached to the bed of the river—none of them are so large as to require to be blown, and the artificial channel would have to be opened through sand and gravel.

The subscribers reside in Pittsburgh, and would be happy to afford every information upon the subject to any enterprizing persons disposed to undertake the work.

INTERESTING NARRATIVE.

Heroic and Sanguinary Conflict with the Indians.—In the year 1794, while the Indians were yet troublesome, especially on the banks of the Ohio, Captain William Hubbell, who had previously emigrated to Kentucky from Vermont, and who, after having fixed his family in the neighbourhood of Frankfort, then a frontier settlement, had been compelled to go to the eastward on business, was a second time on his way to this country. On one of the tributary streams of the river Monongahela, he procured a flat bottomed boat, and embarked in company with Mr. Daniel Light, and Mr. Wm. Plascut and his family, consisting of a wife and eight children, destined for Limestone, Kentucky. On their progress down the Ohio, soon after passing Pittsburgh, they saw evident traces of Indians along the banks, and there is every reason to believe that a boat which they overtook, and which, through carelessness, was suffered to run aground on an Island, became a prey to these merciless savages. Though Capt. Hubbell and his party stopped some time for it in a lower part of the river, it did not arrive, and it has never, to their knowledge, been heard of since. Before they reached the mouth of the Great Kenhawa, they had, by several successive additions, increased their number to twenty, consisting of nine men, three women, and eight children.—The men, besides those mentioned above, were one John Stoner, an Irishman, and Dutchmen, whose names are not recollected; Messrs. Ray and Tucker, and a Kirkpatrick, whose two daughters were also of the party.

Information received at Galliopolis confirmed the expectations, which appearances had previously raised, of a serious c[illegible] with a large body of Indians, and as Captain Hubbell had been regularly appointed commander of the boat, every possible preparation was made for a formidable and successful resistance of the anticipated attack. The nine men were divided into three watches for the night, which were alternately to continue awake and be on the look out for two hours at a time. The arms on board, which consisted principally of old muskets much out of order, were loaded, and put in the best possible condition for service. At about sunset on than day, the 23d day of March, 1791, our party overtook a fleet of six boats descending the river in company, and intended to have continued with them, but, as their passangers seemed more disposed to dancing than fighting, and as, soon after dark, notwithstanding the remonstrances of captain Hubbell, they commenced fiddling and drinking instead of preparing their arms & taking the necessary ship preparatory to battle, it was wisely considered more hazardous to be in such company than to be alone. It was therefore determined to proceed rapidly forward by aid of the oars, and to leave those thoughtless fellow travellers, behind. One of the boats, however, belonging to the fleet, commanded by a captain Greathouse, adopted the same plan, and for a while kept up with capt. Hubbell, but, all its crew at length falling asleep, that boat also ceased to be propelled by the oars, and captain Hubbell and his party proceeded steadily forward alone. Early in the night a canoe was dimly seen floating down the river, in which were probably Indians reconnoitering; and other evident indications were observed of the neighbourhood, and hostile intentions of a formidable party of savages.

It was now agreed that should the attack, as was probable be deferred till morning, every man should be up before the dawn in order to make as great a show as possible of numbers and of strength; and that whenever the action should take place, the women and children should lie down on the cabin floor, and be protected as well as they could by the trunks and other baggage, which might be placed around them. In this perilous situation they continued during the night, and the captain who had not slept more than an hour since he left Pittsburgh, was too deeply impressed with the imminent danger which surrounded them to obtain any rest at that time.

Just as daylight began to appear in the east, and before the men were up and at their post agreeably to arrangement, a voice at some distance below them in a very plaintive tone repeatedly solicited them to come on shore as there were some white persons who wished to obtain a passage in their boat. This the captain very naturally and correctly concluded to be an Indian artifice, and its only effect was to rouse the men and place every one on his guard.

The voice of entreaty was soon changed into the language of indignation and insult, and the sound of distant paddles announced the approach of the savage foe. At length three Indian canoes were seen through the mist of the morning rapidly advancing. With the utmost coolness the captain and his companions prepared to receive them. The chairs, tables, and other incumbrances were thrown into the river, in order to clear the boat for action. Every man took his position, and was ordered not to fire till the savages had approached so near, that (to use the words of captain Hubbell,) "the flash from their guns might singe their eye brows;" and a special caution was given that the men should fire successively, so that there might be no interval. On the arrival of the canoes, they were found to contain about twenty-five or thirty Indians each. As soon as they had approached within musket shot, a general fire was given from one of them, which wounded Mr. Tucker in the hip so severely that "his leg hung only by the flesh,' and shot Mr. Light just below the ribs. The three canoes placed themselves at the bow, stern and on the right side of the boat, so that they had an opportunity of raking in every direction. The fire now commenced from the boat, and had a powerful effect in checking the confidence and fury of the Indians. The captain, after firing his own gun, took up that of one of the wounded men, raised it to his shoulder, and was about to discharge it, when a ball came and took away the lock; he cooly turned round, seized a brand of fire from the kettle which served as a caboose, and applying it to the pan, discharged the gun with effect.

A very regular and constant fire was kept up on both sides. The captain was just in the act of raising his gun the third time, when a ball passed through his right arm, and for a moment disabled him.—Scarcely had he recovered from the shock, and re-acquired the use of his hand, which had been suddenly drawn up by the wound, when he observed the Indians in one of the canoes just about to board the boat in its bow, where the horses were placed belonging to the party. So near had they approached, that some of them had actually seized with their hands the side of the boat. Severely wounded as he was, he caught up a pair of horseman's pistols, and rushed forward to repel the attempt at boarding. On his approach the Indians fell back, and he discharged a pistol with effect at the foremost man.—After firing the second pistol, he found himself without arms, and was compelled to retreat! but, stepping back on a pile of small wood which had been prepared for burning in the kettle, the thought struck him, that it might be made use of in repelling the foe, and he continued for some time to strike them with it so forcibly and actively that they were unable to enter the boat, and at length he wounded one of them so severely that with a yell they suddenly gave way. All the canoes instantly discontinued the contest and directed their course to captain Greathouse's boat, which was then in sight. Here a striking contrast was exhibited to the firmness and intrepidity which has just been displayed. Instead of resisting the attack, the people on board this boat retired to the cabin in dismay. The Indians entered it without opposition, & rowed it to the shore, where they instantly killed the captain and a lad about fourteen years of age. The women they placed in in the centre of their canoes, and manning them with fresh hands, again pursued captain Hubbell and party. A melancholy alternative now presented to these brave but almost desponding men, either to fall a prey to the savages themselves, or to run the risk of shooting the women, who had been placed in the canoes in the hope of deriving protection from their presence. But "self-preservation is the first law of nature," and the captain very justly remarked, there would not be much humanity in preserving their lives at such a sacrifice, merely that they might become victims of savage cruelty at some subsequent period.

There were now but four men left on board captain Hubbell's boat capable of defending it, and the captain himself was severely wounded in two places. The second attack, however, was resisted with almost incredible firmness and vigor.—Whenever the Indians would rise to fire, their opponents would commonly give them the first shot, which, in almost every instance would prove fatal. Notwithstanding the disparity of numbers, and the exhausted condition of the defenders of the boat, the Indians at length appeared to despair of success, and the canoes successively retired to the shore. Just as the last one was departing, captain Hubbell called to the Indian who was standing on the stern, and on his turning round, discharged his piece at him; when the smoke, which for a moment obstructed the vision, was dissipated, he was seen lying on his back, and appeared to be severely, perhaps mortally wounded.

Unfortunately the boat now drifted near to the shore where the Indians were collected, and a large concourse, probably between four and five hundred, were seen running down to the bank. Ray and Plascut, the only men remaining unhurt, were placed at the oars, and, as the boat was not more than twenty yards from shore, it was deemed prudent for all to lie down in as safe a position as possible and attempt to push forward with the utmost practicable rapidity. While they continued in this situation, nine balls were shot into one oar, and ten into the other, without wounding the rowers, who were hidden from view, and protected by the side of the boat and the blankets in its stern. During this dreadful exposure to the fire of the savages, which they continued about twenty minutes, Mr. Kilpatrick observed a particular Indian, whom he thought a favourable mark for his rifle, and, notwithstanding a solemn warning of captain Hubbell, rose to shoot him. He immediately received a ball in his mouth, which passed out at the back part of his head, and was almost instantaneously shot through the heart. He fell among the horses that were about the same time killed, and presented to his afflicted daughters and fellow travellers, who were witnesses of the awful occurrence, a spectacle of horror which we need not attempt further to describe.

The boat was now providentially and suddenly carried out into the middle of the stream, and taken by the current beyond the reach of the enemy's balls. Our little band, reduced as they were in numbers, wounded, afflicted, and almost exhausted by fatigue, were still unsubdued in spirit, and being assembled in all their strength, men, women, and children, with an appearance of triumph, gave 3 hearty cheers, calling to the Indians to come on again if they were fond of the sport.

Thus ended this awful conflict, in which, out of nine men, two only escaped unhurt. Tucker and Kilpatrick were killed on the spot, Stoner was mortally wounded, & died on his arrival at Limestone, and all the rest, excepting Ray and Plascut, were severely wounded. The women and children were all uninjured, excepting a little son of Mr. Plascut, who, after the battle was over, came to the captain and with great coolness requested him to take a ball out of his head. On examination, it appeared that a bullet which had passed through the boat, half penetrated the head of this little hero, and remained under the skin. The captain took it out, & the youth observing, 'that is not all, raised his arm, and exhibited a piece of bone at the point of his elbow, which had been shot off, and hung only by the skin. His mother exclaimed, 'why did yoo not tell me of this?' 'Because,' he cooly replied, 'the captain directed us to be silent during the action, and I thought you would be likely to make a noise if I told you.'

The boat made the best of its way down the river; and the object was to reach Limestone that night. The captain's arm had bled profusely, and he was compelled to close the sleeve of his coat in order to retain the blood and stop its effusion. In this situation, tormented by excrutiating pain, & faint through loss of blood, he was under the necessity of steering his boat with his left arm, till about ten o'clock that night, when he was relieved by Mr. Wm. Brooks, who resided on the bank of the river, and who was induced, by the calls of the suffering party to come out to their assistance. By his aid and that of some other persons, who were in the same manner brought to their relief, they were enabled to reach Limestone about twelve o'clock that night.

Immediately, on the arrival of Mr. Brooks, captain Hubbell, relieved from labour and responsibility, sunk under the weight of pain and fatigue, and became for a while totally insensible. When the boat reached Limestone, he found himself unable to walk, and was obliged to be carried up to the tavern. Here he had his wound dressed, and continued several days until he acquired sufficient strength to proceed homewards.

On the arrival of our party at Limestone, they found a considerable force of armed men, about to march against the same Indians, from whose attacks they had so severely suffered. They now learned that the Sunday preceding, the same party of savages had cut to pieces a detachment of men ascending the Ohio river, from Fort Washington, at the mouth of Licking river, and had killed with their Tomahawks, without firing a gun, twenty one out of twenty two men, of which the detachment consisted.

Crowds of people, as might be expected, came to witness the boat, which had been the scene of so much heroism and such horrid carnage, and to visit the resolute little band by whom it had been so gallantly and perseveringly defended. On examination it was found that the sides of the boat were filled with bullets and with bullet holes. There was scarcely a space of two feet square in the part above water, which had not either a ball remaining in it or a hole through which a ball had passed. Some persons who had the curiosity to count the number of holes in the blankets, which were hung up as a curtain in the stern of the boat, affirmed, that in the space of five feet square, there were one hundred & twenty two. Four horses out of five were killed, and the escape of the fifth, among such a shower of balls, appears most miraculous.

The day after the arrival of captain Hubbell and his companions, the five remaining boats which they had passed on the night preceding the battle, reached Limestone. These on board remarked that they distinctly saw the flashes, but could not hear the report of the guns.—The Indians, it appears, had met with too formidable a resistance from a single boat to attack a fleet & suffered them to pass unmolested; and since that time it is believed no boat has been assailed by the Indians on the Ohio.

IMPORTANT TREATY WITH THE INDIANS.

We understand that the Treaty with the Chippeway Indians has beer concluded by gov. Cass, for the cession to the United States of a considerable portion of this territory including all the country upon the Sagana river and its branches. The boundary of a tract now purchased commences at the present Indian boundary line west of this place, and runs from that point due west sixty miles, thence in a direct line to the head of Thunder Bay river, and down the same to the mouth, which is probably from seventy five to one hundred miles north west of Sagana Bay.

The treaty has been concluded upon terms equally advantageous to the United States and to the Indians and in a manner so satisfactory to the latter, that we learn their chief speaker. Neshemenondequet, was despatched by the nation to wait for gov. Cass upon this side of the Sagana river, and to inform him that they felt perfectly satisfied with the arrangement which had been made, and very thankful for the attention shewn to them.

Considerable reservations have been made for them; and the means provided for assisting them in agriculture; and there is reason to hope, from the disposition they now manifest that they will become a stationary, industrious and farming people.

This cession, containing more than six millions of acres, is very important to this territory. The gentlemen who attended the treaty from this place, concur in opinion respecting the quality and situation of the land and the natural advantages of the country. They represent the soil to be of the first quality heavily timbered with immense forests of sugar tree and black walnut timber, and a large part of it equal in every point of view to the Miami and Scioto bottoms in the state of Ohio.

The Sagana is stated to be a fine large river navigable many miles from the Sagana Bay for vessels of burthen, and far into the interior of the country for loaded boats. Five considerable streams unite at a place called La Fourche, to form this river, presenting an almost unexampled instance of a beautiful and highly fertile country being watered in the most bountiful manner.

We anticipate a speedy migration to this tract and a great increase of population and wealth to the territory.

COLUMBIA, (S. C.) Oct. 5.

We received the following dreadful statement from Chester District. We give it to the public as it has been handed to us, without being able to form any conjecture of the motives which influenced the perpetrators of this horrid act. We recommend to travellers in this and the neighboring states to be diligently attentive to any reports or surmises which might be likely to lead to a discovery of these bloody villains.

MURDER!!!

On Monday morning, the 27th ult. between three and four o'clock, Mr. George Brown of Chester District, was, at his own door, most horribly and barbarously murdered!

A few moments before this diabolical act was perpetrated, some person was heard to rap at the door. When Mr. Brown arose and opened it, two persons immediately seized and dragged him out and with a knife or some similar instrument, they cut his throat in the most savage manner, so that the head was nearly severed from the body.

The Satanic actors of this unprecedented, this unparalleled and most horrid deed are not yet known, but we hope ere long that justice will overtake them.

If they be not discovered so that they may receive the punishment due to their crimes from a human tribunal, we are fully assured that they will not escape the righteous judgment of a just God in a future world!

The above is as horrid and awful an instance of barbarous murder, as has ever been known in our land; and at a time too, when apparently, God is working wonders amongst his people of this quarter of the world.

POPULARITY.

On this subject the Editor of the Baltimore Morning Chronicle, has the following just remarks:—

"What is vulgarly called popularity, is a drug so cheap in the political market, that it is unworthy the acceptance of an honorable and high-minded man. It may be obtained by sycophancy, double dealing, and by falsehood: it requires the exercise of another talent than that of knavery and deception: the false patriot has nothing more to do than to make pompous promises, and to neglect to comply with these promises when made, and he will obtain vulgar popularity in abundance. Real popularity is a bird of a prouder plume, and metaphorically speaking, may be said to belong to the aqualine genus—he wings his way to the centre of light and glory, while he bears plaudits from the gazing multitude below; he is still gaining on the beams, and finally if he does not reside in the blaze, it is not for want of effort, but because he has no atmosphere where he can exert the energies of his wings."

Rye coffee is advertised for sale in Philadelphia at 8 cents per pound. The New-York Daily Advertiser believes it would pay the manufacturer a handsome profit. We know that it is used by several families in this town, who agree in recommending it as an excellent and cheap beverage. The following is the recipe:—

Put a quantity of rye into warm water, rub it well through the hands, then rinse it well in clean cold water, dry it, and then burn and grind it in the usual method. (Alex. Gaz.

A NOBLE ACT.

For the following anecdote of a Mr. Perry, an old revolutionary soldier, we are indebted to a gentleman of high respectability, who was an eye witness to the scene. It occurred at Schenectady, but a few days since.—Some ten years ago, Mr. Perry set out from one of the eastern states to visit his friend, living in the western part of this state. By the time he had reached Schenectaday, he found his purse exhausted. He was old, infirm, destitute, and among strangers; but to strangers he was compelled to relate his short and pathetic appeal to their charity for assistance to prosecute his journey. The Landlord of the stage tavern, and a neighbour, who happened to be present, were not deaf the claims of a Poor Soldier, and between them gave him a five dollar bill, never expecting to hear from him again. A week ago, Mr. Perry put up at the same tavern, on his way to his friend's. In a neat dress of homespun the venerable soldier presented himself to the landlord, and said—"Sir, some years ago, in a time of need, you gave me five dollars, I am now a pensioner and am able to pay you—here is your money, with my renewed thanks for your kindness." The landlord at length recognized his long-forgotten guest, and was compelled by the honest pride of the soldier to take back the boon of charity.—Albany Reg.

PITTSBURGH.

Tuesday, Nov. 2, 1819.

On Saturday night the 22d ult. the watchmaker's shop of John H. Wise, of Greensburgh, was entered by some villains, & about 300 watches stolen therefrom. Two men who had been loitering about the town, were suspected of having committed the robbery. They stopped at Mr. Gilchrist's tavern, about two miles west of Greensburgh, until Saturday morning; they then went to Mr Eicher's tavern, where they remained until about three o'clock in the afternoon: when they went down the turnpike road, with the view, as they said, of going over the mountains, but returned in the evening, and left it again about 8 o'clock. In Greensburgh on the evening of the robbery they purchased some files, and a centre bit. Two keys that appeared to have been recently made, one of them curiously constructed, were found in the neighbourhood.

Parties of men pursued in every direction.—They were traced to this place and over the Monongahela bridge. Robert Young, who lives on the Coal Hill continued the pursuit, and overtook and apprehended them about 12 miles on this side Wheeling. They were brought to this city on Thursday evening last, & on Friday morning taken to Greensburgh for trial.

It had been been discovered that these fellows had a residence near this place, and John Dougherty was apprehended on suspicion of being concerned with them and harbouring them. Upon search being made in his house, were found a pair of saddle baggs, a portmanteau, two vises; a brace and bitt, a pair of shoes with square boxes in the heels, and in each box small copper plates, with 2, 10, 20, 50, engraved on them for the purpose of altering bank notes.

Dougherty being alarmed, communicated to some persons that he could show where the watches were hid, and accordingly Sheriff Stewart, with several other gentlemen accompanied him to near where he lived, about 4 miles from this place, and found concealed in a deep hole a keg containing 231 of the watches which had been stolen.

At the same time that we record the above, it gives us satisfaction to state that the notorious Lewis who robbed our fellow citizen Mr. MCLELLAND has been retaken after having broke jail The governor of Pennsylvania has been censured for liberating this man from the penitentiary a few months ago; this however is unjust, as this artful and daring robber had conducted himself while confined, with great apparent penitence, and all persons concerned represented the case in such a manner to the executive, that he was perfectly right in curtailing the period of his confinement. It is astonishing what a terror Lewis's name excites on the mountains; for some time after the robbery no individual would travel alone, and even the stage drivers were infected with terror when they arrived at a solitary spot. The day is not far distant we fear when our mountains will be made the scene of many dreadful acts of violence and robbery.

Military Road.—The Nashville Whig says, "We learn by a gentleman from the section of country through which this road is opening, that the troops employed have been reinforced, and it is believed the road is already opened. We are not informed how far the lower end is completed. This road, when finished, will make the road from Nashville to Orleans about 300 miles shorter than that now travelled, and is therefore, of the utmost importance to the western country. We understand much credit is due to the officers in command, for the handsome manner in which the road is opened.

A gentleman from Bedford has informed us, (says the Westmoreland Republican,) that on Monday morning last, about half an hour before day-light, it was discovered that the prison wall had been broken, and that Lewis and his two accomplices, Connelly and Hanson, with two negroes, had effected their escape. The citizens immediately went in pursuit, and the five fellows were apprehended on the afternoon of the same day, at the foot of the Dry Ridge. They were unarmed, and made no resistance They succeeded in making their escape, by burning the door away from their irons, and burning a hole at another place through the floor, descending to the lower part of the jail, where breaking through, and afterwards through the jail. It is supposed the negroes, though hand cuffed and hoppled, furnished Lewis and his accomplices with the fire, who were chained to the floor.—They found an axe with which they cut loose their irons; but what was done with them they refused to tell. The prisoners are now guarded.

BEDFORD, (Pa.) Oct. 14.

A minute detail of the capture of the celebrated DAVID LEWIS, and his two associates; the supposed robbers of Mr. John M'Clelland.

In our last week's paper we stated the robbery of Mr. John M'Clelland, of the house of M'Clelland & Martin of Pittsburgh, near the Forks of the road on Shelinghill, in this county. We are now happily enabled, through the highly praise-worthy efforts of some of the citizens of this county and the counties of Mifflin and Huntingdon, to inform the public, that three men (one of whom is the notorious David Lewis) supposed to be the robbers, have been apprehended, and are now in Bedford jail.

On the evening the robbery was committed, Mr. Thomas T. Cromwell of Huntingdon county, was returning from a meeting held in his neighbourhood, and passed three men who gave him the ordinary salutation of strangers, and passed on. Mr. James Lockart of this county, having heard the news of the robbery, came on to Mr. Richard Ashman's on foot. Early on Monday morning Mr. Richard Ashman sat out on horseback and came to Mr. Cromwell's. He and Mr. Thomas T. Cromwell sat out in the direction of Lewiston (Mr. Lockart being on foot could not keep up with them.) At Shirleysburgh they were joined by Mr. Patrick M'Garey and Mr. James Ramsey, also on horseback. In Mifflin county Mr. Ephraim Enser and Mr. William Price of Waynesburg, joined them. These gentlemen pursued the trails of the three men whom they supposed to be the robbers, and who had robbed one or two spring-houses in the course of the preceding night. At a small tavern or dram-shop, one mile and a half or two miles below Lewistown, and 60 or 70 miles from the scene of robbery, it was ascertained that three men had taken lodgings for the night. Some guarded the house, and others rushed in, and before the supposed robbers were completely awakened, they were secured. No doubt there would have been bloody work had the three robbers had their pistols and knives at command, which it does not seem they had, though all three were well armed when travelling, there being being found in their sleeping room, two large light horse pistols, a small one, and two very efficient carving or butcher knives, which it is believed were stolen by Lewis and one of his companions, out of Mr. Snively's tavern, at the Snake Spring a few days previous to the robbery.

After the robbers were brought to Lewis-town, and in the act of taking supper, which the pursuers had ordered, Lewis perceiving that a pistol had been inadvertantly placed on a side table near where he was sitting, suddenly jumped up, seized the pistol and made for the door—In the entry he knocked down one man and pushed another aside, and ran up the street.—He was pursued by Mr. Price and Mr. Enser.—On overtaking him Mr. Price seized him—but Lewis, being too strong for him, threw him off, and in the act of commencing his race, he was laid hold of by Mr. Enser, who told the Editor that if he had not thought himself able to manage Lewis, he would have shot him.—Mr. Enser attempted to throw him, but failed—and Lewis finding himself watched, turned his hand round and snapped his pistol at the breast of Enser, which fortunately did not go off. At this moment Mr. Enser brought Lewis to the ground with a horrid crash—where he lay for about a minute apparently lifeless. He and his companions were then ironed and lodged in the jail of Lewistown for the night.

On Friday last these three men, one of whom we know to be David Lewis, the other two calling themselves John C. Connelly and James Hanson, were bro't to Bedford by the above named gentlemen, and are now as well secured as the state of our jail will admit. The pursuers found on the prisoners eighteen hundred dollars and clothing answering to the description of that lost by Mr. M'Clelland.

JAMES M'CAY.

Pittsburgh, September 24.

Town of PALERMO.

THE scite of this Town is on the bank of the Ohio river in Union county, state of Kentucky, immediately opposite the mouth of the Saline river, in the state of Illinois.

The Sale of Lots

will take place on the 20th day of October next, under the directions of the Commissioners appointed by the Court of Union county, and will continue from day to day, till Three Hundred are disposed of

will be one fourth down, one fourth in nine, one fourth in eighteen, and one fourth in twenty four months, with a deed of trust to secure the payment.

There is no situation on the Ohio between its source and mouth (with the exception of Louisville) which combines more or greater advantages than

PALERMO

—Union is allowed to be the most fertile county south of Green river, and the whole section of country between the Green and Cumberland rivers is well known to be peculiarly adapted to the culture of Tobacco than any other part of Kentucky. The population is increasing most rapidly, and by many of the most respectable and genteel families from Virginia, North Carolina and she old settled parts of Kentucky. This town is about 1200 miles above New-Orleans and lies in the direct course to Illinois, Missouri, Arkansaw, Kaskaskia and Red River countries, and shortens the distance at least thirty miles instead of going by Shawanee-town. In its immediate neighbourhood, are very large bodies of the richest land in the state—it is about 6 miles by water from the United States' Salt Works, and must become the deposit for the salt wanted in the adjacent counties of Kentucky, and a considerable portion of Tennesee.

is destined to become one of the greatest places on the whole river for steam works, having an inexhaustible coal mine within half a mile of the river, and the coal not a foot below the surface, and also within three or four miles of the town one of the richest ore banks in the western country.

PALERMO

possesses a great advantage over every other situation on the river above it, that steam-boats and others can at almost all seasons of the year come from and return to New-Orleans, there being never less than 12 feet water at its banks; the want of which advantage was severely felt from Pittsburgh as low as Shawaneetown last fall, at the former of which places an immense amount of goods was detained on account of the lowness of the water from September to December. An importing house at this place, getting goods from Baltimore, New-York or from Europe direct by way of New-Orleans, and having one or two branch steam boats, drawing not more than from two to two and an half feet water, would make incalculable profits by supplying the country as high as Louisville and up the different tributary streams of the Ohio with merchandize. This town is laid off on a beautiful plain or level extending from the river to the foot of the Curlew Hills, a distance of nearly a mile, and commands a fine view of the Ohio and Saline rivers.

Encouragement to Mechanics to settle in

PALERMO;

Fifty Lots

Will be given gratis in fee simple, (including those given to the acting Commissioners) also the use of pit coal for five years, for fuel, the use of an acre lot for five years for a garden, timber for the interior of a two story house building stone from the Curlew hills, on condition that the grantee build and completely finish in two years, a two story house aforesaid of brick or stone; the same privileges will be extented to purchasers at the first sale, but to no others. The situation is peculiarly well calculated for an industrious and prudent mechanic to realize a fortune in a short time; provisions are remarkably low, wages uncommonly high, and the savings of a few months can at any time be invested in the public lands by crossing over to Illinois, Indiana or Missouri, which will increase annually for years to come from 25 to 30 per cent.

PALERMO

is very healthy, well watered by a number of the purest springs, and at a distance of about eighteen miles are some of the most efficacious White Sulphur and Salt Sulphur Springs in the Western country, which are much resorted to. At the same time will be leased for a term of years, from

15 to 20 FARMS

Of 75 ACRES each, of as rich lands as the state affords, adjoining the town; and every stick of wood, every fowl, pig, shoat, lamb, mutton, vegetable, pound of butter or pint of milk that the farmer can spare will find a certain and ready market from the steam boats.

The following trades would meet with most encouragement, viz. Brick-makers, Brick layers, Carpenters, Black-smiths, Wheelwrights, Coopers, Cabiner makers, Tanners & Curriers, Shoemakers, Hatters and Tailors. None however need apply except such as are masters of their trades and sober and industrious. Any letters directed to the subscriber at Frankfort, Ken. (post paid) will be duly attended to.

The circumstance of these Stoves having got into very general use at the eastward, within 2 or 3 years past, particularly in the cities of New-York and Baltimore, with the rapid sale and general approbation they have met with since their first introduction last winter, west of the mountains, are sufficient testimonials of their utility and advantage.

WESTERN HOTEL,

No. 228 MARKET STREET,

Sign of General Washington.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has taken that well known establishment in Market street, next door to the Pittsburgh Mail Stage Office, and lately occupied by Mr. George Yohe. To those who have been accustomed to resort to this house, it is unnecessary to point out its superior advantages. For the information of others we deem it necessary to state that its situation is central, high, healthy and convenient to business; an extensive range of back buildings, consisting of lodging rooms, afford a fine view of the city to the eastward, and admit a free and uninterrupted circulation of air—and what will give them a decided preference in the opinion of many, is the attachment thereto of balconies, so constructed as not only to afford pleasant promenades, but easy means of escape in the event of any necessity from any sudden alarm of fire. The great Western Stages start every morning from the door, and on the premises is one of the best Livery Stables in the city, conducted by Mr. John Tomlinson, where travellers' horses will be faithfully attended to. With these advantages, and some other improvements now making, added to his own unremitted exertions to please, the subscriber confidently hopes for, and very respectfully solicits a share of public patronage.
